Bright Star by John Keats

1 Bright star, would I were stedfast as thou art—
 Not in lone splendour hung aloft the night
 And watching, with eternal lids apart,
 Like nature's patient, sleepless Eremite, 5 The moving waters at their priestlike task
 Of pure ablution round earth's human shores,
 Or gazing on the new soft-fallen mask
 Of snow upon the mountains and the moors—
 No—yet still stedfast, still unchangeable, 10 Pillow'd upon my fair love's ripening breast,
 To feel for ever its soft fall and swell, Awake for ever in a sweet unrest,
 Still, still to hear her tender-taken breath,
 And so live ever—or else swoon to death.

The Orange by Wendy Cope

- 1 At lunchtime I bought a huge orange –
 The size of it made us all laugh.
 I peeled it and shared it with Robert and Dave – They got quarters and I had a half.
- 5 And that orange, it made me so happy,
 As ordinary things often do Just lately. The shopping. A walk in the park.
 This is peace and contentment. It's new.
- 10 The rest of the day was quite easy.
 I did all the jobs on my list
 And enjoyed them and had some time over.
 I love you. I'm glad I exist.

Vergissmeinnicht by Keith Douglas

- 1 Three weeks gone and the combatants gone returning over the nightmare ground we found the place again, and found the soldier sprawling in the sun.
- 5 The frowning barrel of his gun overshadowing. As we came on that day, he hit my tank with one like the entry of a demon.
- 10 Look. Here in the gunpit spoil the dishonoured picture of his girl who has put: Steffi. Vergissmeinnicht.
in a copybook gothic script.
- 15 We see him almost with content, abased, and seeming to have paid and mocked at by his own equipment that's hard and good when he's decayed.
- 20 But she would weep to see today how on his skin the swart flies move; the dust upon the paper eye and the burst stomach like a cave.
- For here the lover and killer are mingled who had one body and one heart.
And death who had the soldier singled has done the lover mortal hurt.

The Son by Clifford Dymont

1 I found the letter in a cardboard box, Unfamous history. I read the words.
The ink was frail and brown, the paper dry After so many years of being kept.

5 The letter was a soldier's, from the front—Conveyed his love and disappointed hope Of getting leave. It's cancelled now, he wrote.
My luck is at the bottom of the sea.

10 Outside the sun was hot; the world looked bright;
I heard a radio, and someone laughed.
I did not sing, or laugh, or love the sun,
Within the quiet room I thought of him,
My father killed, and all the other men,
Whose luck was at the bottom of the sea.

Farther by Owen Sheers

1 I don't know if the day after Boxing Day has a name but it was then we climbed the Skirrid again, choosing the long way round, through the wood, simplified by snow, 5 along the dry stone wall, its puzzle solved by moss and out of the trees into that cleft of earth split they say by a father's grief at the loss of his son to man.
We stopped there at an altar of rock and rested, 10 watching the dog shrink over the hill before continuing ourselves, finding the slope steeper than expected.
A blade of wind from the east and the broken stone giving under our feet with the sound of a crowd sighing.
15 Half way up and I turned to look at you, your bent head the colour of the rocks, your breath reaching me, short and sharp and solitary, and again I felt the tipping in the scales of us,
the intersection of our ages.
20 The dog returns having caught nothing but his own tongue and you are with me again, so together we climbed to the top and shared the shock of a country unrolled before us, the hedged fields breaking on the edge of Wales.
Pulling a camera from my pocket I placed it on the trig point 25 and leant my cheek against the stone to find you in its frame, before joining you and waiting for the shutter's blink that would tell me I had caught this:
the sky rubbed raw over the mountains, us standing on the edge of the world, together against the view 30 and me reaching for some kind of purchase or at least a shallow handhold in the thought that with every step apart, I'm another closer to you.

My Angels by Sara E Faircloth

1 As a child safe within the warmth of your embrace Protected from the cold careless world outside Through all the trials and tribulations that I would face
I knew that under your wings I could run and hide

5 You have shown understanding and compassion throughout the years That ultimately would make me the person I should be After all the smiles and through all the tears
I was then blind, but now I finally see I have two angels who have fallen from the sky

10 Who would lift me up when I was down?
To fix my wings when I couldn't fly
And to replace the smile that once was a frown You've wiped my tears with your gentle hand Reassuring me that everything was going to be okay

15 I knew that no one else could ever understand
I could read your expression, you didn't have to say I wish to be that child once more But life goes on and I will stand tall
So when you need an angel, just knock on the door

20 And I will be your feet if ever you should fall
